Subject: WV spill site : 5PM govs press conference UPDATE

Governor Earl Ray Tomblin hosted a press conference at 5pm today (Sunday) at the state capitol and was joined by officials from National Guard, WVDHHR, West Virginia American Water, WVDEP and Office of Emergency Servcies. (Freedom Industries no longer attends these pressers.)

Officials confirmed that a 1ppm mesurement or less had been recorded over a 24 hour period, setting the stage for moving next to the flushing stage. WVAM displayed a digital map of the affected area and explained their intent to roll out the flushing program by zones starting on Monday. The zones will be mapped at this site - <http://www.amwater.com/wvaw/> Residents will be told to watch for their address to enter a "green zone" before beginning the flushing process.

WVAW said 10 labs around the state plus Ohio and Pittsburgh are currently testing samples. The Governor reiterated that a declared State of Emergency is still in place. WVAW said there are 16 sampling teams working, and over 100 smaples have been taken and tested.

The DEP said no fish kills have been reported and there has been no evidence of impact on fowl or other wildlife.

Schools in the affected counties will remain closed Monday, as will most businesses, including restaurants, bars and hospitals are operating at reduced capacity.

The West Virginia Legislature, which began its annual 60-day session last week, will likely gavel in and gavel out on Monday, according to House Speaker Tim Miley, and send members back to their districts until the water issues are resolved.
